“I feel over the moon. I can hardly describe how I’m feeling right now, it’s not really sunk in yet. There was a lot of added pressure to get the grades to get into Cambridge, but I’m really excited that I am now going to university. I almost didn’t apply but I kept surprising myself along the way. I got an interview and then offer. I’ve proved to myself I can do things well.”

COMMENT

Universal Credit cut will hit borough hard

Daisy Bryan from Citizens Advice Enfield explains why the charity has campaigned against benefit reduction Citizens Advice Enfield is urging the government to reverse a cut to Universal Credit that could drive thousands across the borough into poverty. The last 18 months have been extremely difficult for everyone in the community, but cutting Universal Credit in October risks sweeping low-income families into more hardship just as they're getting back on their feet. This cut would impact one-in-five working-age people in the borough. According to the latest available figures, approximately 43% of those residents set to see their benefits drop are families with children and 40% are already in work. In one example, our advisers have helped a care worker and their family, including three dependents under the age of 18. The client was facing significant hardship and relying on foodbank vouchers to get by. The cut to Universal Credit will have a devastating impact on them and their family. At Citizens Advice Enfield alone, we've supported 1,461 people on Universal Credit over the course of the pandemic – around half of whom we hadn't seen before. The £20-a-week increase during this difficult time has been a lifeline.

to work for long periods and this led to a dramatic drop in their income and an accumulation of debts. They had no choice but to rely on Universal Credit and the £20 uplift has kept them out of crisis during this difficult time. That £20-a-week doesn't just help our clients; it's a critical cash boost for communities that need it most. In Edmonton, the cut is estimated to reduce spending in the local economy by £18.5m. This does not appear to be in line with the government's ambition to 'level-up' poorer communities within the UK.

to prevent the cut. In a letter to the prime minister, Enfield North MP Feryal Clark joined our campaign, saying that "support for those out of work will be left at its lowest level in decades" at a time of unprecedented crisis. If this cut goes ahead, it will take effect from 6th October. Please get in touch if you are in need of support.

Our service supports many in the community who are struggling with debt. An adviser has supported a client with significant debt to an energy company who is at risk of being cut off. The client is a single parent, relying on Universal Credit to cover childcare in order to be able to work. Removing the £20 lifeline will drive them further into the red. Local MPs have joined our plea
